Celebrating Richmond's newest sports legends

The Richmond Sports Wall of Fame honoured two remarkable individuals at its induction ceremony on Mon, Nov 24. This year's inductees, Bruce Allison and Raymond Sawada, were recongnized posthumously for their lasting impact on Richmond's sports community. They join an esteemed group of 75 individuals and teams previously inducted.

Know someone who has made a significant contribution to Richmond sport? Nominations for the 2026 Richmond Sports Wall of Fame are now open until Wed, Dec 31, 2025.

A sparkling start to the holidays

Experience the magic of the season as Winter Wonderland returns to Richmond City Hall for its 24th year. Step into the Galleria to enjoy 30 beautifully decorated Christmas trees, then wander through the North Plaza, where 15 more outdoor trees transform the space into a twinkling holiday forest. The trees will officially light up on Sat, Nov 29. Free and open to all, Winter Wonderland also features festive weekend performances by Metro Vancouver music schools on Nov 29, Dec 6, and Dec 13.

Tales in Current

A striking new artwork is welcoming transit riders at Brighthouse–Terminus Station, re-imagining the Canada Line as a vibrant waterway flowing through Richmond. Tales in Current, by artist Linfeng Zhou, was installed as part of the Art Plinth Program, which brings vibrancy and creative expression to the Canada Line's concrete guideway. Through its dynamic and abstract forms, the installation merges two profound stories associated with water.
